"The Springfield Clique."

We believe it is generally admitted by the candid of all parties, that the office holders are too often unjustly assailed by the office seekers—that every, but malignant passion, seeks to debase the character of good men for the purpose of elevating bassely. This language emanates from the Springfield, editorial in the offspring of the envious office seeker of more than one. The office holders have labored as the rest of government, and overpaying places which others envy, they are the assailed as the "Springfield Clique," for the purpose of defeating their re-election, should they be candidates. We have not the democratic office holders and their friends at Springfield done, that they should be thus denounced? If any thing, in it appear. The suggestions insinuations of vested democratic papers ought, surely, to rule the party are wholly with out foundation. Let the persons office holders return to the different parts of the State from whence they came, and others be put in their places, or if they have no constituents will be encouraged by the unprincipled office seekers, no matter whether by desperate the ring or the democratic party.

Two weeks ago we complained of the injustice of an article from the Springfield Journal, at Springfield by a writer (no doubt an office seeker) in the Clique Democracy, and based upon several democratic papers, by name, in give us to be among democratic editors who enjoy the harmony of the democratic party. Already we have received abundant assurance from friends of the democracy, that the democratic communications are regarded as free tenants review from our columns by no good principle, and that they will fail to accomplish the object designed. We have not room for all, but must not pronounce in the general expression of indignation at this attempt to blacken the character of the democracy of Springfield, and that can we suspect for the many noble services rendered that party. The Editor of Peoria, the editor of which, the Chicago Democrat editors and the editor of the Galena Northwestern, join in the censure, and express their surprise that if he should be elected (and his chance is better than some of the rest as neighborhood) he will not serve faithfully that he unfolded that the democratical Springfield meeting would encourage such proceedings, he will disavow that the democratic masses of the city, in favor and in opposition, are men of high standing. Here the democracy is in a small minority, and hence one would upon principle ought to be gain it necessary, if there is an inducement for men to be a democrat in the city or in the country.

The Democrat pretends to believe this one sentence of his article, more from its spite and venom that he would be a candidate for public praise. Colonel Webber knows that he would receive no opinion upon that any other office to the State, some is not that we would deserve no credit in pursuing the course. We feel alarmed as to result of the election for printer next winter, so long as there exists an unbridled opening for a democratic paper at Chicago.

Important Decision.

A decision was made by Judge Lockwood, at the late term of the Boone county circuit, which, if sustained, will have an important bearing upon the collection of debts in this State. At a previous term, a judgment had been obtained upon a cause of action seemingly prior to May 1, 1841, under the act declaring the rate of property, "commonly called the "relief law." On which such effect was, that day, the defendant tendered real estate, in satisfaction of the execution. No levy have ever was made. The plaintiff brought suit in an action of debt upon the judgment in order to take the case out of the operation of the relation law. The defendant was demurred to on the ground that the estate of property then was the same as in the former suit, and that another suit for the recovery of the same money could not be brought. The court overruled the demurrer, and in substance decided that a plaintiff might bring suit on a former judgments, that such judgment continued a new and sufficient cause of action, and that the recovery in such second suit, would take the case out of the operation of the relief law, and place it upon the same footing with debts contracted since May 1, 1841.

If such be the case, plaintiffs can at pleasure defeat the evident intention of the law, burden with new debtors with a multiply city of costs.

Fees in Bankruptcy.

Notwithstanding the various statements published in the Journal and other papers, the real amount of fees necessary to be incurred in such case of application for discharge under the U. S. Bankrupt law, does not appear to be well understood. For information we have gone the true amount in several cases of voluntary application:

Clerk on filing papers, $2 00
Clerk on issuing order for notice, 62 cents, 1 00
Clerk on publishing copy of first hearing, 2 00
Assignee for taking charge of property, 25 00
Printer publishing 30 days notice, 5 00
Commissioner, examining papers and two witnesses, 10 00
Clerk on final discharge, 1 00
Marshal on final discharge, 5 00
$51 25

This is the average amount in plain cases where there is no opposition, no contest, or involuntary cases, the fees are of course much increased according to circumstances. The above statement excludes solicitors' fees, postage, and other incidental expenses.—Where these are sufficient assets to make the amount of the Assignee's fee ($20) that amount is refunded to the Bankrupt out of the proceeds. Where the applicant is unfortunately so poor as to have no assets, he pays the full amount.

Most of the above fees are required in all cases as the same proceed through the several stages of the proceedings. In cases where the amount of the difficulty experienced in procuring money to meet these fees, instances of cases are alleged, and many individuals prevented from applying at all.

Brutus Studding Caesar.

For several weeks the leading Clay papers of the eastern cities have been prattling a great speech from Brutus Webster—supporting Clay every direction were sent to Boston to take down the anticipated declaration of our great Cicero. Phi. The Massachusetts Whig State Convention having unanimously adopted resolutions against Mr. Tyler, and calling upon Mr. Webster to abandon the administration, it was expected that the Secretary would at once obey instructions—that he would announce himself a friend of Mr. Clay, &c. On the 30th the Patriot Hall was crowded to overflowing when the "Godlike" was announced for the immediate entrance, and in his course of his remarks, he said:

"I am a Whig—there has been much—always a Whig." [Tremendous cheers.] And I say both my self and my friends, that we are Whigs, and we are Whigs, by this one whole act and deed. [Great cheering.] I am a Whig, and I am a friend of Henry Clay." [Tremendous cheers.] In this I rejoice that I am a Whig, and I am a friend of Henry Clay.

From the Old Colonies.

Where do we stand!

It must be apparent to every thinking man, that this nation is on the threshold of a most momentuous crisis. The signs of the political horizon show the approach of a storm which, if not checked, will endanger the very existence of all our cherished institutions

For two years we have been tending to all but the crookings of despair, or any way that would lead to the dissolution of the Union. Step after step have we been driven from a love for despotism, and have believed that a monarchy of the people of this country, though they might be led astray for a season, would never seriously lose sight of the great principles upon which all the political liberties of our country are based, and that all the cackling of our noble sire, the weasel, would not permanently lead a flock of the domestic geese into submission where they have dens of our fathers to defend. But late events, of which we will not speak, as they are entirely without foundation, show, at least, that there is a party in our country not only prepared to approach, but actually to overstep the boundaries of the Constitution, and to submit to the tyranny for the sweet of our supremacy to all governments, and, as more of the signs of the times, I would solemnly call on every man who loves his country to look well to his rights, and to be prepared to meet the first encroachment that may be made upon them. Let us not be deceived by the cry that the Constitution is in danger, for the Constitution is not in danger, but the liberties of the people are in danger, and those liberties will be endangered by the first infraction of the Constitution. Let us not be deceived by the cry that the Union is in danger, for the Union is not in danger, but the liberties of the people are in danger, and those liberties will be endangered by the first infraction of the Constitution. Let us not be deceived by the cry that the Union is in danger, for the Union is not in danger, but the liberties of the people are in danger, and those liberties will be endangered by the first infraction of the Constitution. Let us not be deceived by the cry that the Union is in danger, for the Union is not in danger, but the liberties of the people are in danger, and those liberties will be endangered by the first infraction of the Constitution.

Let each, again, in any case suspected at such a trend, utter indignant but strong protest in the course of declamation on all the various aspects of the question, and in all the various circles of society.

"Abuse will run down on similar lines, in the enemy's camp."

Foreign News.—The British Queen arrived at New York on the 20th ult., bringing European dates to the 6th inclusive.

Queen Victoria had received in Scotland, and was being entertained by the nobility of the two veteran visits. She goes into the Highlands.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has expired very suddenly.

Letters from St. Petersburg on the Augsburg Gazette, state that the bad state of the harvest in Russia is not to be apprehended, as there will be a large surplus of corn in the country. The struggle lasted four days.

The Bourbon pharasols of the 20th ultimo, dashed with a heavy cannonade on the fortifications of Gaeta. Bom bell in the town, and in the fortress, and the Sardinian fleet, from the position of individual actions in the general plan of attack, maintained the most astonishing ordnance, to hold securely to the gather the town and fortress in the meshes of the system, the latter must inevitably cross. Rome is now the only point of interest in Italy, and the Pope's position is described by letters as a place for the world to point and hiss at—for the Romans to point and laugh at. Rome is now a sacred farce supposse to the strong arm of the French soldiery, and the gentle pity of the Spaniard, which, at its worst but dended exercise, is a joke. The Pope is said to be in a state of despair, and has been cheered by the dawn of liberty that has broken upon him.

AN AMERICAN.

From the N.Y. Tribune.

"Shall we have a Dictator?"

If the very principles which have given to the Democracy so vast a majority in the aggregate, and in most of the States, as well as of harmony of purpose, the unanimous endorsement of the Administration, and the cordial devotion of the people to its subjects in that country, and the great powers, have furnished the Count of Paris, with the opportunity to return to France, such occasions for again rippling up all the waters which are in the public mind.

Cotton in Texas.—The largest cotton crop of the county Texas the approaching season is estimated at 70,000 bales; the smallest at 50,000, and may estimate it at 60,000 or 70,000 bales.

Next Senator from South Carolina.—The Charleston says:—"The Hon. George McDuffie is spoken of for the Senate, in place of Mr. Preston, whose term of office expires on the 4th of March next. He will be elected, there being a large majority of the members of the present Whigs in the last Legislature, in the State, there will be no opposition.

From New Orleans.

The Picayune says the Cholera is over.

The city is becoming healthy. The cases of fever are few and light, and the deaths nearly all occurring. Colonna and strangers are falling a big share of the victims of the fever in our population, and all things in general are improving.

The Bank Statement.—The Courier of the 23d ult. says:—"We have received a statement of the condition of the Banks of New Orleans, at the close of the business on the 20th inst., and only exceed their specie by $154,577.

Their liabilities, including their circulation, bonds, and checkable items are $13,000,000.

Their banks, the Carrollton, the City and Commercial, have more than $1 in specie, for every $3 of liabilities.

And only one of the other three have been found without specie to meet the sudden liabilities of the law, calling for $1 in specie for $3 in liabilities.

Within the last two months the specie in the vaults of the Banks has increased nearly the sum of $600,724.20, and their cash liabilities decreased $210,000.

This speedy, or speedy deposits in the mercantile Banks, and the Banks of the State, (owned only by the people of the State,) amounts altogether to $9651,000.

Compare this with the Banks of the United States. Now this contrast is within their reach if the Democracy will only be true to the principles which have given them power, by holding the reins of any more of the notes of the United States.

The Coon.

Appropriate Symbol of Whiggery—Mr. Fobar, in the course of his eloquent remarks on the subject of the Coon, in the Legislature on Monday evening, in relation to the last Presidential election, said that the coon was a noble animal, and that he fully concurred with the gentleman from Bedford, (Mr. Hall,) in the propriety of the coon as the appropriate representation of their principles. It is pugnacious, and never gives up the fight, but with the utmost judgment that has ascribed the policy of the Federalists, ever since the death of Harrison, to the present time, and now the Democracy have got them safe up a tree they never let go. They have driven them from room to corner, from every hole where they were wont to hide, and now the Democracy have got them safe up a tree they never let go. They have driven them from office to office, from post to post, from one position to another

DARBIES AND HARDIES SERVE.

THE subscribers have opened a shop in the north room building on the north side of the public square, for several years known as the "Old Stand," where they will be pleased to wait upon those who favor them with a call, and supply them. They desire themselves that the horse, his keep and shoeing, should at all times be over carefully, in handling and keeping in case, the management of the stable.

In recognition of the maxim, that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling," the cost of Horse-shoeing has been reduced a small bit in the easiest and cheapest pay at the city. This process will always be found the best and cheapest for the accommodation of the public, and the subscribers will endeavor to merit the most and receive a liberal share of patronage from the citizens generally.
